However, the subject property may continue to be used in its existing capacity, or for new uses if a permit is granted, and any structures on the property can be repaired, maintained, altered or extended, including the addition of accessory structures, if it does not result in non-conforming uses, non-conforming structures, or increases in lot coverage percentage beyond the maximum allowed, and as long as any extension or addition is in conformance with all provisions of these regulations, as indicated by an approved permit
